

Preferably, the assembly may detect any backward pressure exerted on the syringe driver assembly. More preferably, detection of a backward pressure above a certain threshold results in stopping of the motor.